

"March Madness Minutes"

For our fellow members and guests March's monthly meeting was very informative. We were fortunate enough to pull out of the sky one of the most knowledgeable men in the electrical industry today that is Jeff Sargent.

The reason I referred to the sky is that Jeff flies all over our Country, 12 months of the year educating, keeping companies, and other groups of electrical experts updated on the NFPA's latest findings, announcements and publications.

Think about it! It's like a dream come true. Local guy sets a goal, works hard, puts in the time required and achieves his goal. He becomes one of our countries most reliable expert electrical resources. Yes, this is Jeff Sargent.

At our March meeting Jeff covered a gamut of articles that NFPA represents, he explained those articles in layman's terms, to ensure our attendees understood them.

Our members couldn't get enough of Jeff's teachings and information regarding fire pumps, that night. Jeff could have spoken till midnight, they were in awe! One of our best meetings in awhile, not a peep in the room everyone seemed focused on the presentation.

If you think for one second that I am going to brief you in this "Minute Memo" about the content of Jeff's presentation to further educate our guests and members, you are wrong!

The only way you can get this type of information is to attend our monthly meetings yourself. This not only applies to the electricians in the trenches, it applies to the Electrical Inspectors in the field as well!

Jeff Thank you again for all the support you have given to the Electrical Industry, the IAEI and especially us at the Paul Revere Chapter. Our door is always open for you. Call us anytime for anything.
